SIR JOHN WALSHAM. The failure of the British Minister at Paking

to even ackno wladge the receipt of communica-Walsham to take any action or to show the common courtesy of noknowledgment of their acquiesce in silent defeat. The policy that the British Minister has hitherto found so off ctive prove less convenient. The British public have bean made acquainted with the character of the man who is supposed to protect the interests of British trade in China. The Chambers of Commerce throughout Great Britain will, we imagine, be stirred to deep in ligaration when they read the letter of the Chairman of the Hongkong Chamber of Commerce in The Times The matter will no doubt be taken up in the House of Commons, and it is to be hoped that Bir John Walsham's summory dismissal will be called for as the result. It cannot be sunposed for one moment that his instructions from the Foreign Office are to listen to no representaground of complaint against the British Minister, and it must be admitted that it is a pretty strong one. British subjects in China would be infinitely better off without such protection as the British Lagation at Peking now affords, and British trade is feeling the flects of the encourgement given by the indifference of its so-called Superintendent to violations of treaty stipulations by Chinese officials. Now that the Chinese Government have exhibited so rigid a determination to construe the text of the Treaties a every way to the prejudice of foreign trade, train the sense adversely whenever possible. and to resolutely refuse to grant any extension of tradal facilities, it behaves the Treaty Powers, and England especially, to take care that no infraction of Treaty rights is tolerated for a moment and no concression made to Poking without some quid pro quo. The British G verament have gone out of their way to respect Chinese prejudices and save trouble to Peking on a veral occasions, but they have received no thanks for such consideration, and even such a small conession as the opening up of the upper waters of the river Chukiang to British trade has been denied. It is possible of course-may very probable—that this has never been formally askfor by Sir John Walsham, as it would entai trouble. Now that the iron has been struck by Mr. Mackintosh, it would be a good opportunity for the united Chambers of Commerce of Grea Britain to ask for the appointment to Peking of Minister of energy, activity, and determination, instructed moreover to ask for some substantial reparation for the riots and murders in the Yangtsze Velley, in which might be includ-

to remain, quite settled in Ulu Pahang, Mr. Rodger continues to express the fullest confidence that the Sultan will suppress the outbreak and the belief that the Sultan never gave, directly or indirectly, any countenance to the Orang Kaya. Mr. Rodger has had many or portunities of judging of the Sullan's attitude in the course of personal interviews, and is quite convinced that all rumours to any contrary effect have no foundation whatever,, Mr. Clifford, who has also had many opportunities of observation, entirely agrees. It is the epinion of both of these officers that if the Sultan had not been in earnest the outbreak would have long ago spread beyond its present limit. When once Major McCallum and Syers start in earnest upon the rebel position at Jeram, and the Sultan and his Malay forces with Summer's Sikhs come into contact with Orang Kaya's followers on the lower Semantan it will be a mere matter of a day or two to clear the whole river of the rebels and their kampongs.

A curious dispute has arisen at Singapore that any communications that were intended to be made to the whole consular body should be made through him. After consultation with H. E. the Governor, the Acting Colonial Socretary replied (in substance), but of course politely, that H. E. had no knowledge of a consular corps or a Doyen of the consuls; that the consuls were not diplomatic representatives but only mercantile agents; that the ouston of communicating with the conse's through the Senior DEAR SIE, Notwithstanding the notice Consul-General was a proper custom, and that

> ANARCHIST OUTRAGE IN ITALY. HOME. 11th January. 'An anarchist conspiracy has been discovered at Giosseto, in Tuscany. Two boulds were thrown into the police office. One of the bombs exploded, doing considerable damage to the ballding, but not injuring anyone. The other bomb did not explode. An examination showed that it contained a high explosive and was evidently the work of some experienced dynamiter. Th police have since been busy at work trying to ascertain who the plotters were and have secure evidence that they think justified the arrest 20 anarchists of suspicion of being connected with the bond throwing.
